Issyk-Ata gorge is a great destination for hiking and recreation. It has also been a place of pilgrimage since ancient times, being famous for its image of Buddha and Buddhist inscriptions dating back to the 7th century BC. The gorge is popular because of the resort (located at an altitude of 1,860 m above the sea level) that was built in 1957 on hot mineral springs of hydrogen sulphide water. The hot water has a positive impact on the musculoskeletal system, internal organs, and neurological diseases.
